Dedication

Mr. Walter J. Taylor, Jr.

Because he was facing the problems of a new principalship as we were experiencing the problems of freshmen . . .
because he became familiar with his position as we became familiar with ours . . .
because he is deeply concerned with the welfare of the student and the progress of the school . . .
because he is the very symbol of dignity and education . . .
because of our respect for him, we dedicate the 1965 Columbian to
Mr. Walter J. Taylor, Jr.

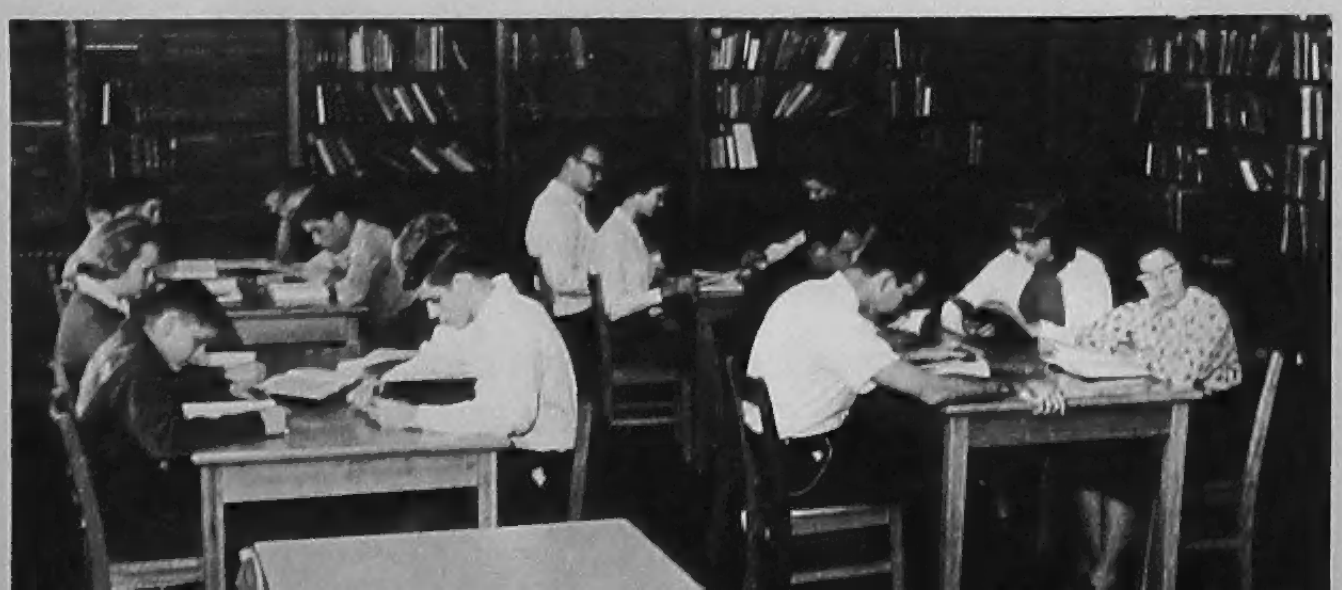
There Were Challenges

On September 1, we accepted our challenge to a new school year. At once most of us recognized the fact that the tasks which lay before us would not be easy. We knew, from previous years, that we must work and work hard. For some the challenge was a mere game. They had no thoughts or plans for the oncoming year. They would drift along, and it was up to the inquisitive to bear the load. But there was one fact that all of us recognized: This year would be nothing more or less than what we made of it. Our goal was to make it a success.

There Were Places

Environment is an important factor in our lives. When we are studying, we need a quiet place to compose our thoughts. At CHS, the opportunity for study and advancement is offered throughout the school. For us, CHS will forever stand out in our minds as a place for creating ideals for the future.

Student life is also influenced by our activities outside school. Most of our free time is spent in our homes. There, we obtain the necessities of life, guidance, and understanding. Apart from our homes, we enjoy congregating in our special little groups to share our interests and ideas. Not to be forgotten is the gymnasium where the true CHS spirit reechoes time and time again.



There Were Times

Apart from the hectic schedule and homework assignments, we attend and participate in many extra-curricular activities. We realize that school and preparation for the future is important, but we like to vary our interests. Work and play are not combined, but rather special time is devoted to each.

Moments devoted to these activities will hold a special place in our memory.

The most important part of a successful school is neither the building nor the books but the people involved. Familiar faces come to mean help, friendship, or leadership. There are many at CHS—students, faculty, and others. Each of us learns to know at least one individual whose inspiring words will remain a part of our lives.

There Were People

There Were Days

Some days are not worth getting up for. There are the days when we miss the bus and finally get to school just in time to take that test we forgot to study for. Then there are days when we have to do hectic studying in order to cram for exams. However, these moments are soon forgotten in the feeling of accomplishment after the grades have been posted. Yes, there are good days and bad days. There are days when one wants to be alone or when one seeks the companionship of others.

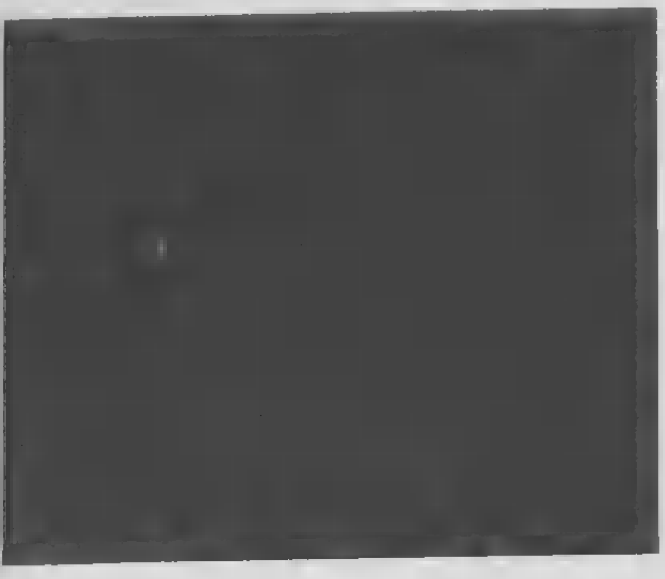
Learning, concentration, and fun combine with the thousand and one little things that make up a day at CHS.

Time is a precious thing. Unlike a jewel, it can not be mounted on a pedestal and viewed whenever we desire. It slips swiftly and silently away.

It passes and leaves behind the fond memories, the trying experiences of those places, times, people, and days. These we can always keep, for they will never be taken away from us.

The Seniors will soon step upon the threshold of the future. Awaiting them will be new challenges: the challenge of college, of a career, and of a family. Others will follow in their footsteps. They also will experience the joys and sorrows of high school. As time continues on, feats will be accomplished, discoveries made, and dreams turned into realities.

. . . Time Continues On



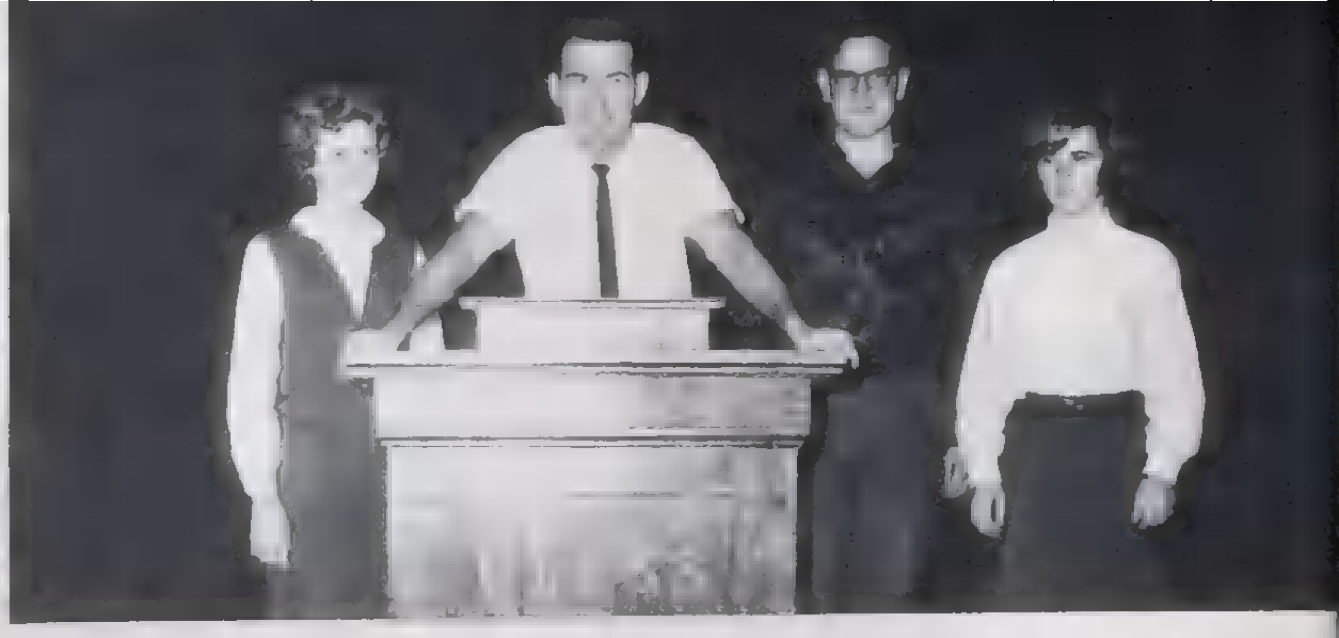
activities

A ship without a captain...a school without activities. Neither can function properly while its method of guidance and leadership is lost.

CHS, our school, has its activities, activities which lead to a more fulfilling and successful student life. Without them, there could never be places, times, people, or days to be remembered by every student leaving these hallowed halls. The organizations within the school enable students to apply their knowledge, aims, and ideas to further better citizenship, better leaders, and a better school.

Sports are the hub of the school. Basketball season brings a [redacted] excitement which ripples throughout the school on waves of enthusiasm. Sports give students training in sportsmanship and teamwork. They include, not only participants, but each individual of the school. Each game lost is felt by all; each game won is for the glory of the school.

Our school is based on the warm atmosphere created by students' striving for the ultimate in a complete education. This atmosphere is encouraged by activities.



chs Student Council

Keeping our school in order is a big job. It is too much for one person; therefore, the Student Council steps in to fulfill its duty.

The members of the Student Council have three main duties. They must try to promote student participation in the government of the school, and they must also set a high standard of school citizenship. Most of all they must set a good example by co-operating in promoting the general welfare of the student body.

To be a member of the Council, a student must have an average of eighty-five on all his subjects and maintain a "B" average in citizenship.

The President, Billy Brickhouse, comes from the Senior class; the Vice-President, Gwen Armstrong, from the Junior class; Kay Liverman, the Treasurer, from the Sophomore class; and Delmo Cohoon, the Secretary, from the Freshman class. Each class is also allowed two representatives. Representing the Senior class are Haywood Davenport and Wayne Comstock; the Junior class, Marsha Brickhouse and Willene Cuthrell; the Sophomore class, Sue Furlough and Garland Swain; the Freshman class, Frankie Davenport and Freda Weatherly; the eighth grade, Jane Hopkins and Roy Lowe; and the seventh grade, Chip Jones. The adviser of the Student Council is Mr. Fred Davenport.

character . . . leadership . . . achievement

The members of the Beta Club are noted for their traits of character, leadership, and achievement. As members of the Beta Club and as citizens of their community, state, and nation, they believe in and strive to promote the principles of honesty, service, humility, responsibility, and co-operation. Any person from the Sophomore class and up can become a member if he meets the set requirements. Those persons must have a 90 average or above to be eligible for membership and must maintain at least a 90 on three-fourths of their subjects throughout high school with no "C's" on citizenship. The club stimulates effort and achievement and encourages its members to continue their education after high school.

The members of the Beta Club are Haywood Davenport, President; Ernestine Roughton, Vice-President; Alice Ann Riddick, Secretary; Carol McClees, Treasurer; and Joyce Rhodes.

Future Scientists of America

The newest organization of CHS is the Future Scientists of America. It was formed for students in grades seven through twelve who are interested in exploring science. These students must have high qualities of character, scholarship, and leadership which are essential to a good scientist. The club strives to teach students about science and to increase their knowledge in that field.

The members of the FSA are Steve Alexander, President; Fara Hassell, Vice-President; Viola Johnson, Secretary; Nanette Smith, Treasurer; Billy Bateman, Arnette Cohoon, Tommy Cohoon, Dru Davenport, Donna David, Teresa Davis, Phyllis Fisher, Faye Jones, Wayne Kidd, Jay McClees, Jerry Rhodes, Rex Simmons, Nancy Sawyer, Kathy Withers, and Howard Swain. Mr. David Davis serves as adviser to the club.

"Toward New Horizons"

The FHA is composed of girls who will be the Future Homemakers of America. Any girl who has taken Home Economics for one or more years is eligible for membership in this club.

The members of the FHA are the builders of homes for America's future. They learn to live a more useful and satisfying life through their Future Homemaker activities. Every FHA member faces the future with warm courage and high hopes.

The officers of the Columbia chapter of FHA are Barbara Sawyer, President; Nancy Owens, Vice-President; Viola Johnson, Secretary-Treasurer; Arnette Cohoon, Reporter; Dorothy Barefield, Song Leader; Patricia Basnight, Pianist; and Mrs. Mary Ann Combs, Adviser.

The FFA is an organization of boys who will be the Future Farmers of America. This club helps boys to develop in agricultural leadership, co-operation, and citizenship. FFA boys are taught farming skills and techniques, woodworking skills, and the care and repair of tractors and small engines. Parliamentary procedure is also taught to every boy in the FFA.

The club officers for the 1964-1965 sessions are Billy Brickhouse, President; Mike Cohoon, Vice-President; Roy Bateman, Secretary; Albert Cooper, Treasurer; and Don Grimsley, Reporter.

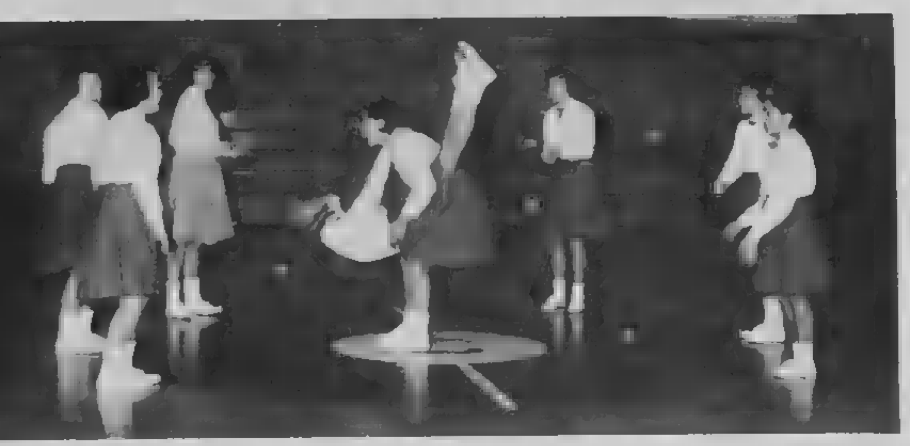
Monogram Club

Sports are a very important institution established within the school. Students who participate in sports strengthen themselves not only physically but also socially. They help further the school spirit with the sportsmanship they display and the vigor with which they play the game or lead the fans in cheers. In order for these participants to be recognized, the Monogram Club is organized within the school. Any person who has played basketball sixteen quarters is eligible for membership in the club. Those cheerleaders who have cheered sixteen games are also considered members.

Cheerleaders



The cheerleaders of CHS lead the students in many rousing cheer during the year. They instill in the student body a full enjoyment of sports and rising school spirit during basketball games and pep rallies. The girls support the team in all ways; they cheer at all home games and out-of-town games in which the Wildcats participate.

are you satisfied? yeah, man!

Lady Wildcats on prowl

After tryouts in October, the girls' basketball team began hard practice to orient themselves with the many skills required to play the game. Although boys' basketball seems more important to many people, the girls succeeded in doing their part toward building Columbia High spirit.

Under the leadership of their coach, Mr. Kenneth Plaster, the girls worked hard. Teamwork was the motto, and memories of butterflies before the games, laps around the gym, and old buses were soon lost in the pleasure of the games.

Wildcats, court deamons

The desire to win and the ability to work closely together were the two qualities possessed by our boys' basketball team as they started off the 1964-65 season. There were no real stars; however, in each game won, every team member had contributed his part toward winning the game.

If a game were lost, the boys did not let the loss interfere with their high spirits or their ability to keep trying.

The season had its ups and downs, but when it ended there remained the memories of those exciting moments and of friends made; there remained also the boys' knowledge that they had tried their very best for their achievements.

Features

The Feature section holds the place of honor and esteem within the pages of the Columbian. The students represented in this section have gained their high position by hard work and development of outstanding character traits. The students and faculty of CHS believe that these people have served the school with dignity and honor, thus setting an example for the remaining student body. The future leaders and builders of America are found in these pages. Special times, places, days, and people provide opportunity for our student leaders to learn responsibility and to share the honor which comes to the deserving. These honors brought happiness to them then and will bring happiness to them again as they browse through this annual in the years to follow.

Miss Columbian

Chosen by the faculty as the Senior girl most nearly representing those qualities of leadership, service, scholarship, and character, Ernestine Roughton was named "Miss Columbian." She was selected, along with two of her classmates, to attend the Wake Forest College Leadership Conference during her Junior year. She was also selected to attend Girls' State during the summer of 1964. Ernestine is interested in sports and played guard on the CHS girls' basketball team four years, lettering the last two years. During the graduation exercises of 1964, she served as Co-Chief Marshal. The faculty of CHS and the Columbian salute Ernestine Roughton, "Miss Columbian."

Mr. Columbian

A new addition to the feature section of the Columbian is the selection of "Mr. Columbian," a Senior boy chosen by the faculty for his outstanding traits of leadership, service, scholarship, and character. The first "Mr. Columbian" is Haywood Davenport. Haywood attended the Wake Forest College Leadership Conference in his Junior year and Boys' State during the summer of 1964. As a member of the Columbia High School basketball team, he has lettered each of the four years he played and received an All-Conference award for his third year of participation. Haywood served as Chief Marshal during the 1964 graduation exercises. The faculty of CHS and the Columbian salute Haywood Davenport, "Mr. Columbian."

Inez Brickhouse and Ernestine Roughton

Six members of the Junior class were selected to attend Girls' and Boys' State in June, 1964. The American Legion Auxiliary and the Columbia Junior Woman's Club sponsored two girls who attended the week-long session at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. Four boys were sponsored by the American Legion, the East Carolina Bank, the Columbia Rotary Club, and the Tyrrell Hardware Company. They attended Boys' State a week later at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. These students were chosen on the basis of leadership, character, and dependability. While attending the sessions, they learned more about the functions of government and the purpose of many governmental organizations.

Marshals

Gordon Barnes, Billy Brickhouse, Patty Higgins, Sandra Walker, Inez Brickhouse, Alice Ann Riddick, Haywood Davenport, and Ernestine Roughton.

Each year prior to Commencement exercises, marshals are chosen from the Junior class. Those chosen have the highest scholastic averages in the class. They serve as marshals at the baccalaureate service and the graduation exercises held in the school auditorium at the close of the school year.

The Columbian and faculty honor these students whose outstanding qualities of service, character, scholarship, and leadership have been a credit to Columbia High School. Their participation in extra-curricular activities has made them worthy of faculty as well as student admiration.

Senior students whose reputable service and admirable character distinguish them gain special recognition as Outstanding Seniors of 1965. Their superior scholarship and prominent leadership have set good examples for other students and have helped these Outstanding Seniors obtain their eminent position.

Columbia High School has one of its most valuable assets the quality of its instruction. The school strives to offer an opportunity for educating its students and for leading them to moral and intellectual maturity. With this as its primary aim, the school lays great stress on academic excellence. It seeks to help students learn how to use that which is available to them in preparing for the future.

However, the interest of the faculty members in their students extends far beyond academic instructions; they offer them guidance and assistance in a variety of ways. The students' most ardent supporters and best friends are the members of the faculty. These members set for students high ideals to follow. Their unchanging willingness to instruct, advise, and encourage, never falters, although most aspects of school life change from year to year.

English

The English Department assists students in understanding and using the language correctly. It helps students to appreciate the literary heritage of the English-speaking people. This department also has the services of Mrs. Sue Plaster. Public speaking taught by Mrs. Plaster, enables students to learn to think and speak freely in public.

Civics is necessary if a student is to fully understand democracy. Mrs. Madge Van Horne, as the teacher of this subject, is trying to turn out good American citizens by helping them to understand our government.

For those students who are going to college, she teaches French I and French II. French not only increases our ability to comprehend the thoughts and actions of French-speaking people, but it also gives us knowledge of the French language as well as the country of France.

To the Senior students, she teaches such things in English literature the writings of Shakespeare. In grammar she broadens vocabulary and at the same time teaches to use the language correctly.

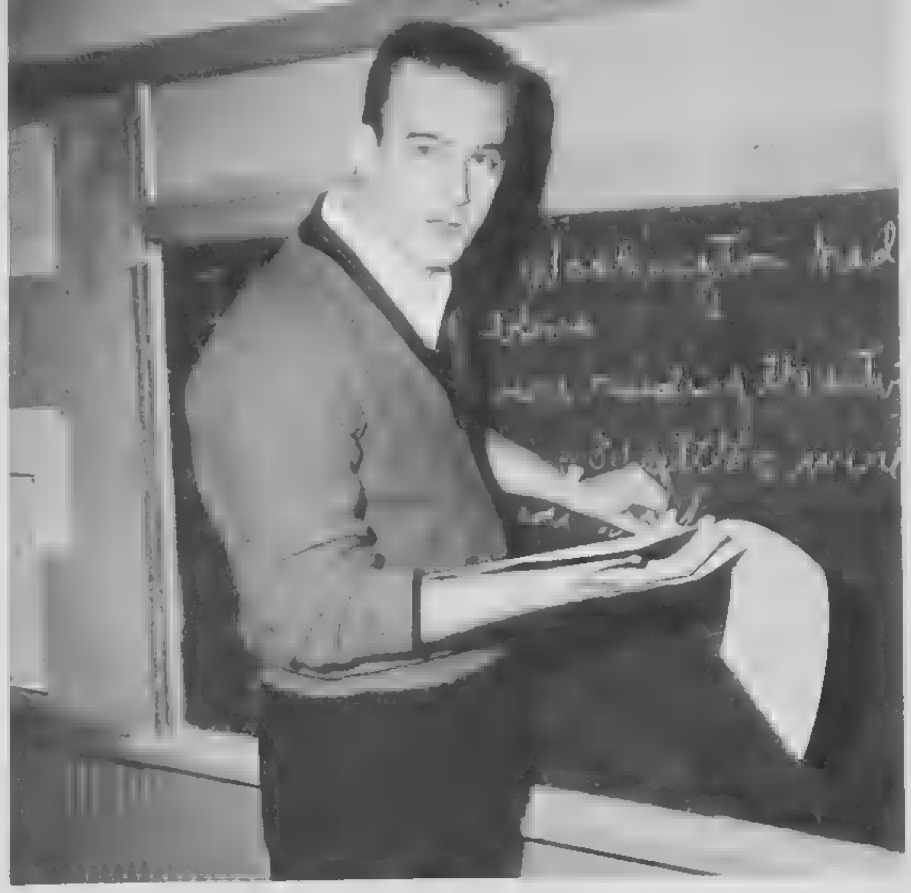
Science

Application of scientific principles, development of an understanding of basic ideas in biology, general science and physics, and the processes by which these ideas are being advanced are the main objectives of the Science Department directed by Mr. Jerry Cole and Mr. Walter J. Taylor, Jr.

Mr. Cole not only directs the science branch of the school, but he also teaches physical education and health. Development of skills and physical fitness through exercise in physical education activities, and instruction in personal and community health are the main objectives of the Physical Education Department.

Mathematics

The Math Department, headed by Miss Judy Pearsall, offers a wide range of opportunities for both academic and commercial students. Courses available in this department consist of general math, algebra I, algebra II, and geometry. These courses are being taught with ideas of strengthening the basic arithmetic and are to be used as tools for further mathematics, science, business, and any practical daily experiences. Keeping pace with the modern world, they continually instill in students the importance of accuracy, neatness, and perseverance.



Social Studies

The Social Studies Department strives to provide an understanding of man and his relationship to past and present society.

The task of informing students of the world, its history, its government, and its geography is given to Mr. Kenneth Plaster.

The direction of health and physical education is also part of Mr. Plaster's schedule.

faculty

The Business Education Department, headed by Mr. Fred Davenport, prepares students for proficiency in the field of business. It provides courses in typewriting. Students learn how to type business letters, envelopes, and other business transaction forms. For students interested in accounting, bookkeeping provides an opportunity to learn basic systems of accounting and business math. With the demand for well-trained secretaries and bookkeepers growing, business education becomes more valuable each year.

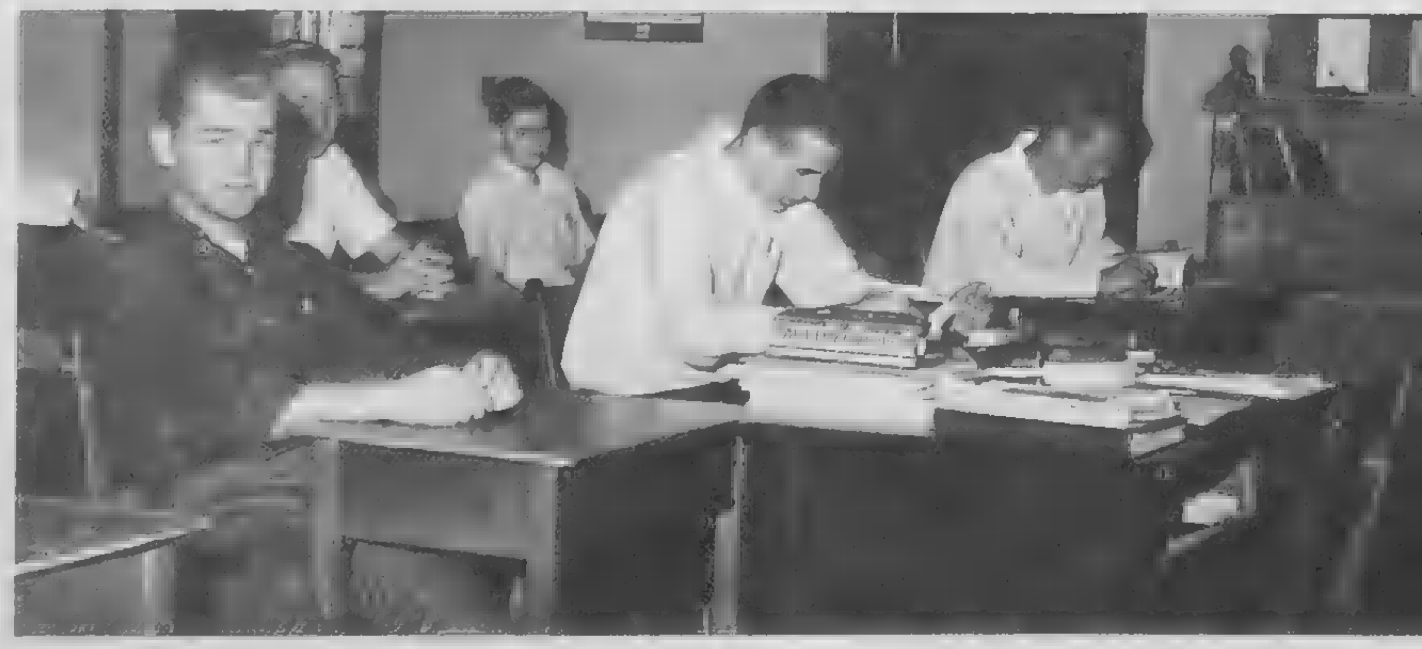
Business Education

home economics

The changing pattern of home and family living points to new emphasis on the Home Economics program. It endeavors to teach students the art of making a happy and comfortable home and stresses the importance of taking an active part in social and civic affairs in the community. With the assistance of Mrs. Mary Ann Combs, students are able to develop their domestic potentialities.

AGRICULTURE

The Agriculture Department of CHS, guided by Mr. Rowland Riddick, desires, by using many experiences, to create in the mind of the student an awakening to the many values and responsibilities of working with materials and tools. From these experiences, it is hoped that the student will recognize the importance of co-operating and working with other students, that he will learn to plan his work with a definite procedure of doing and finishing his project, and that he will develop his ability to use tools and equipment with care and skill. It is the desire of this department to instill in the pupil an appreciation and respect for good workmanship.



Staff

Four very essential students compose the office assistants' staff at Columbia High. These students assist the office manager by helping with monthly reports, attendance, absentees, and many other transactions which are found in the office. The office manager is a valuable member of the school staff. He is responsible for handling all the business which occurs throughout the year. The public health nurse is also very important at CHS. She checks upon the general health of the students. If a student must see a dentist, she takes him for a check-up. She assists at the eye clinic which is held each year.

These vital preparations are accomplished by our faithful office assistants, office manager, and health nurse who are appreciated by all at CHS for their untiring efforts.

Many thanks are extended to the bus drivers, to the staff of the lunchroom, and to the custodians of CHS for their outstanding service to the student body for the past year. The bus drivers have proved to be invaluable to those who must ride a bus to school. Due to their concern for each person and their excellent training, we can be assured of a safe bus ride. Through the planning and hard work of the lunchroom staff, we have enjoyed warm, nourishing meals each school day. The maintenance of the entire school property is the job of the custodians who have served CHS well. Thanks to their work, we are able to attend school in a comfortable, clean school throughout the year.

SENIORS

"Goodbye" is one of the hardest words in the English language to say. The difficulty lies, not in the phonetics, but in the meaning that it holds. The "goodbye" we bid CHS means we are on our own. We must gather the twelve years of knowledge we have received at CHS and go out into the world and make something of ourselves. Though the road ahead will bear many obstacles, we will do our best to overcome these barriers. With a swift turn of the head for a last look, we leave CHS and utter a thank you and a goodbye.

As the Seniors begin to prepare for graduation, the Juniors are becoming aware of the terrific burden which will soon fall upon them. They know all must be ready to accept this burden, the challenge of leadership. Yet, fond memories of the past school year linger in their hearts and minds. Not only do they sell magazines each year to raise money to honor the Seniors ■ a prom, but they also work hard on the concession stand at the home basketball games. And, of course, Juniors await that important day when class rings arrive.

The Sophomores find, during the year, that studies are becoming more specialized and that they will soon be gaining the responsibility and hard work involved in being upperclassmen. Behind them are the Freshman days. Ahead are the glorious days of being Juniors.

Not to be forgotten are the Freshmen. As the year begins, they have to acquaint themselves with a new phase of life which holds for them joyous and happy moments. These wonderful moments will be theirs as they are swept into high school life.

Elementary

The students represented in the elementary section of our school play an enormous role in the functioning of the school system. Within these grades are found the future leaders and builders of our community, school, and nation. The examples which are left behind by the graduating classes each year, guide these students as they continue their climb to reach the set goal of graduation.

The seventh and eighth grade students have begun to prepare themselves for high school. They all await the day when the title "Freshmen" is bestowed upon them. This day is only the first of a series which will bring to each student many joys and sorrows experienced as they continue their journey of life.

The remaining grades are now setting their methods of conduct, learning, and living. During these years, these students must learn from the examples of teachers, parents, and students in order to begin to mold their future.

The credit for an important part of the support of the Columbian belongs to the merchants of this area. We shall remember, with a feeling of sincere gratitude, our association with them and their warm and gracious desire to help. Whether we go as customers or as promoters of a school project, we always receive a warm welcome and a triple share of patience and consideration. It is in recognition of their support and encouragement that we express our sincere appreciation to them for their interest in our school.

Today, as we stand here in these hallowed halls there is silence all around us. We hear no longer the old familiar sounds of school life. Gone is the excited chatter, the ringing laughter, and the rushing footsteps of CHS students. Yet, in this silence we have time to think of the past and the unknown future. If we think hard, we can hear those sounds, we can see those people, and we can experience those moments which made life at CHS so unforgettable. They will all play an important part in our young lives.

The passing of time will change things. The future will hold for many extreme happiness, for many success, for many never-ending love, and for some life-long failure. All of us will experience a little heartbreak. Perhaps we will find that our set goal is too high and our ambition, a trifle weak.

In this 1965 Columbian, we hope to give others a part of school life that will never be forgotten. In the pictures, they will find faces of old friends; in the words and phrases, they will return to the days when life was full and yielded much, to days of joy and sorrow, to days of great and beautiful dreams.

Some of us will leave Columbia, never to return; others will stay. Whether we leave or stay, whether we be near or far, we will always remember our school, COLUMBIA HIGH.
